The Daily Quote

"...According to Mr. Norquist's interpretation of the Americans for Tax Reform pledge, lawmakers have the technical leeway to bring in as much as $4 trillion in new tax revenue — the cost of extending President George W. Bush's tax cuts for another decade — without being accused of breaking their promise. 'Not continuing a tax cut is not technically a tax increase,' Mr. Norquist told us. So it doesn't violate the pledge? 'We wouldn't hold it that way,' he said."
